Every student, every day, whatever it takes!
"Without humility, you are unable to learn"
 Albert Einstein

For the young, old and those in between, humility is the key to continuous learning. Humility allows us to recognize that we don't know everything and that what we do know, does not necessarily give us wisdom. Instead, we should acknowledge that our information is biased and seek out other sources of wisdom that we lack.

Humility is not about knocking people down and/or dismissing their opinions. Humility is not thinking less of yourself but thinking of yourself less. Humility is not thinking less of what you already know but thinking of what you already know less so that you can seek out new information, knowledge, and wisdom.

When we seek out information, knowledge, and wisdom...we must remember that they have an expiry date and the three are not the same. Information is not knowledge, knowledge is not wisdom, and wisdom is useless without action. Keep in mind that wisdom is the most important to seek out because it is the "why" of things we do. Information is the "what" and knowledge is the "how." All must be regularly renewed as they have an expiry date.

If "necessity" is the mother of invention, then "humility" is its father. Humility encourages us to seek out better ways and not simply rely on what we already know and what we already do.

The manifestation of humility within us helps us recognize "education" has no end state but is rather an approach to the acquisition of information, knowledge and wisdom that must be continuously renewed for the benefit of individuals, and more importantly, for the benefit of society. Championing Students and Their Learning
