Listening, Learning, and Leading

Every student, every day, whatever it takes!

As educators, we need to Listen, Learn and Lead within our school community. Incorporating the voices of everyone who calls Burnett home, from teachers to students, and from parents to our community, is vital in ensuring that our school truly represents our educational community.

Teacher voice, student voice and family voice can be defined as all the ways in which all stakeholders have opportunities to indirectly or directly participate in and influence educational decisions in our school.

Incorporating the voices of everyone at Burnett Secondary School creates a place of equity, and fosters culturally responsive classrooms that enhance education access, opportunity, and success for students who are historically marginalized within the education system. Teachers who create culturally responsive classrooms use instructional practices that integrate students' knowledge, learning styles, and prior experiences to enhance the effectiveness and relevance of learning.

Educators can integrate stakeholder voices into many aspects of school. In the larger school setting, teacher voice, student voice and family voice practices solicit feedback on school leadership and the operation/management of the school. In classroom settings, student voice and family voice practices can range from teachers soliciting feedback on lessons and teaching style to co-creating learning opportunities with students.

By supporting teachers, students and families in sharing their voices, educators can gain a deeper understanding and appreciation of cultural, economic, and geographic differences, and ultimately, they can better serve our students and community. At Burnett we "Champion students!"

Burnett Learning Time(BLT) starts September 19th

Each week, we allocate instructional time for "self-directed" personalized learning. During this period, students engage in independent learning and pursue their passions with the support and mentorship of teachers. This approach empowers students with choice and ownership of their learning, while our staff members facilitate a supportive learning environment.

Signing up for BLT is required

Sign-up information for BLT will be provided during the week of September 11th. Teachers are asked to share information about their availability with their students before Sept 19th. Students are asked to set their own goals and plan ahead for their BLT. Students will use a web-based sign-up system, same as last year.
