Listening, Learning, and Leading
Every student, every day, whatever it takes!

What is the difference between dreams and goals? As educators, we encourage students to have both dreams and goals. We ask all students, especially our graduating grade 12 students, to dream big. We encourage them to fill their minds with images, thoughts, desires, and emotions that they hope or wish for someday.

Some students might dream of being their own boss, travelling the world, or going on Instagram-worthy adventures. Dreams light us up, give us hope and excite us for the future or place us in far off places with exciting circumstances. They allow us to make what seems impossible possible.

However, dreams and goals are often mistaken for one another. Many believe that goals are similar to dreams, as they represent what we want to accomplish “someday.” This misconception is why so many people fail to achieve their dreams — they forget that a big part of making dreams come true is setting goals and taking actions.

Without goals, your dreams may remain mere wishes, hopes, and thoughts, without any chance of becoming a reality. Goals serve as the pathway to transform your dreams into reality.

Dreams are completely free and only require your imagination to be created. Goals, on the other hand, need some sort of investment, such as time and effort. Hard work and investment in your goals will produce tangible results.

Allow yourself and your students time to dream. All the ideas they dream about can become a reality and are possible when they are attached to goals. Dreams become reality when they are connected to a plan of action. Together, dreams and goals lead to success. Championing Students and Their Learning
